1. Links to State and Territory Registry offices and to [their] freely accessible online indexes, where available
2. Links to Library networked BDM indexes (on eResources)
3. Links to Library subscription resources (for access within the Library only)

Most Australian States and Territories publish indexes to 'historic' births, deaths and marriages registered in their respective jurisdictions. Use these indexes to locate official registrations of life events and obtain registration numbers. Other information such as date and place of the event, parents' names and age at time of death may also be supplied in these indexes. The date range of publication depends on legislation enacted in each State or Territory, so the coverage of indexes varies between each jurisdiction.

Links to online indexes, where provided, are available from this guide and via eResources in the reading rooms. Open access to most indexes on microfiche is provided in the Newspapers and Family History zone of the Main Reading Room. Certificates can only be purchased from the appropriate State or Territory Registries.

Country Information [edit | edit source]

European explorers began arriving in what is now Australia in the 17th century. In 1770, Great Britain claimed Australia as a territory. The "First Fleet" of European settlers arrived in 1788 with ships of convicts. Six colonies were created in the late 18th and 19th centuries; they federated and became the Commonwealth of Australia in 1901. English is the official language.[1]

Finding Your Ancestors' Town in Australia [edit | edit source]

- Genealogical records are organized by geographical locality. Civil registration (government birth, marriage, and death records) and church records (christenings/baptisms, marriages, and burials) were kept at the local level. To search these records, you must know the town where your ancestors lived.
- If you do not know your ancestors' town, follow the advice in the Wiki article, Australia Finding Town of Origin, to search a variety of records that might provide that information.

Australia Clickable Map [edit | edit source]

When doing Australian research, it is helpful to know where one's family or ancestors lived in Australia and to know when they died. Click on a state name or on the map below to learn about research in an Australian state or territory.

Issue No 171 June 2021

Court House Hotel 1869-1889

Wayne Hoppe AFHG member

The Court House Hotel was situated on the corner of Faulkner and Beardy Streets. where the Imperial Hotel now stands

The first publican was William Gordon BRERETON, who stayed for 2.5 years before moving onto the Wellington Hotel (now known as the Tattersalls) in 1872.

The licence was taken over by Edward HODGKISS, who made extensive additions to the premises and had a large billiard room constructed. In 1875 he left Armidale with the intention to go to England but only got as far as Sydney and purchased a hotel there instead Arthur Charles HAYMES was the next publican, but he abandoned the licence just a couple of months later. It was then taken on by William CANNING. However G QUINLIN was the owner of the building and advertised to sell it in 1881. Around the same time furniture from the hotel including 4 new safes, 4 new sofas, 4 new coaches and 4 new large cedar clothes chests were also advertised for sale.

James ROWLAND then became publican, but had left by 1886, when J B FITZGERALD was the licencee, By the following year Mrs LEVERETT had taken over.

The sketch below, drawn by Peter Chambers, shows the hotel on fire and people on the roof of the neighbour Post Office building

The Armidale Express dated the 12 February 1889 recorded the fire that gutted the building. At 3.20 in morning of Monday 11 February Mr W M HARRIS, manager of the Bank of NSW looked out his residence window above the bank and saw fire bursting out from the neighbouring Singer sewing machine depot. The place was full of smoke and flames and the fire appeared to have a firm hold. Mr Harris immediately rushed for assistance while Mrs Harris called out 'FIRE' so as to arouse the neighbourhood. 'Despite all efforts on the part of the crowd, which soon assembled, another block of buildings in Beardy St was quickly burned to the ground. It comprised the Court House Hotel on the corner, Grey's tailor shop, Singer machine depot, Claverie's boot shop, Elliott and Solomon's mining exchange and Corpse's boarding house.'

'The Court House Hotel, owned by Mr David CREAGAN and only lately purchased by that gentleman was insured for £1,250 and the landlady, Mrs Maria Leverett had her furniture and stock insured for £700. As it got a good grip on the hotel, the fire sent showers of sparks onto and over the roof of the Post and Telegraph Office. With the shingles beginning to smoke a number of plucky individuals climbed onto the roof and with wet blankets managed to save that fine government building.'

Mrs Leverett then applied for a temporary transfer of the licence to the Una Studio, formerly occupied by H. B. Solomons, the photographer. However, operating out of temporary premises was obviously not successful and she left and took over the White Horse Hotel.

The current Imperial Hotel building was then constructed on this site.

OUR COLLECTIONS

Family Trees

TreeSearch™ Explainer

Here you can see digital images of a selection of hand-crafted historical Family Trees which have been scanned, indexed and then uploaded to our new Family Tree explorer application called TreeSearch™ - made possible with Art Fund support.

We are making a small selection of these Family Trees available to our members and the public at this stage. Over the next six to twelve months, we will be loading the whole collection of over 20,000 images with indexes, containing over a million names, and those will all be available to our members.

Please note that this initial launch of TreeSearch™ is being made available to test it within a live environment. It is fully functional, but is also still being developed. We welcome feedback on any aspect of it, especially the look and feel, functionality and also accessibility across different devices.

c 400 Collections in over 2000 boxes

The SoG Special Collections are usually the notes of a genealogist's work over a lifetime looking at several families with a common theme. Invariably comprising more than one boxful of material, they often arrive in a removal van! Most (but by no means all) were housed in the Lower Library in boxes or in microform. Now in store. Some are printed and bound books. Many are digitised and online to members via SoG website.

See description notes in online scanned guides , the Genealogists' Magazine and The People behind the Collections in the Library by Susan Gibbons in Society of Genealogists. A Century of Family History, 2011

Collections Order Form

Thank you for booking a visit to our library. If you haven't made your visit booking you please see our Visit Us page, which explains how to book your visit.

If you would like to access collection items from our offsite store when you visit, use this form to order up to five items.

Please order at least one week in advance of your visit, to give us sufficient time to retrieve items from storage.

- Use our library catalogue to find items you are interested in and check the location information in the record. If the location shows as 'Offsite Store' you can use this form to order up to five collection items for your visit. Please provide as many details as you can from the catalogue record for the item you wish to access. Items which have an offsite storage number in their record will be faster to retrieve.

- Our archival collections are in the process of being catalogued for our new collections system. In the meantime, contact genealogy@sog.org.uk with your research questions, and our friendly and helpful genealogy team may be able to provide relevant information about archives of interest to you. Use that information in this form to access such items.

- As we are a FamilySearch affiliate organisation, you can access FamilySearch records at our premises online or on film. Use the FamilySearch catalogue to find details of record sets you would like to see and add to this form (including FHL film numbers if possible) at least one week in advance of your visit. We'll let you know whether the resources will be available online or on film.

- Our parish registers and monumental inscriptions library books have been digitised, so if you would like to view any of these, please ensure that you have reserved a library computer.

Though most of our collection items in storage are easily retrievable (especially if they have a barcode), some items are temporarily unavailable (including items in CD and microfiche formats because we have yet to install the cabinets they are to be housed in, and equipment to view 16mm microfilms will be installed early in 2024). As these materials become accessible we will report on it in the SoG Genealogy Gazette.

We will make every effort to retrieve everything needed and will be in touch with you before your visit to confirm we have everything ready for you.

Added to our archives collections guide are links to scanned copies of our archive collections finding aids. Eventually these collections will be catalogued into SoG Explore, but for now the scanned copies of special and small collection reports, the former archives card catalogue and document collection lists of surnames and topographical material are available to peruse at home or in the library.
The March Genealogists' Magazine will contain a summary list of archive collections processed in 2023.

Welcome to our new Library Assistant Alexander Andreou who commenced work in mid-November.

Here is a reminder of what will be on the open shelves at the new library:
- general and local history collections for English counties, Scotland, and Wales
- quick reference books and textbooks (including research and record guides)
- select items relating to Ireland and India research (space permitting - we'll report on this soon)
- new periodicals and monographs in series

We're also planning a set of 'featured collection' shelves, which we will use to bring various parts of the library collections out of storage on a two-month rotation so that visitors can access them while we work on their catalogue records and carry out some digitisation. Our first featured collection is material relating to the Huguenots and Huguenot Society publications. If you have any suggestions for future featured collections let us know.

All the library staff and volunteers are looking forward to being open to visitors again and to providing resources and assistance in any way we can to serve our amazing genealogical community. Do get in touch if you have any questions at all about accessing our collections and services.

Christine Worthington, Library Coordinator
